

Figure 6.7 | Isoscattering point position quantified by the calculation of the relative standard deviation of the scattering curves for different solvent density gradients. In the case of the aqueous sucrose solution (black line), only the scattering curves below the osmolality threshold were employed for the calculation.

